Valencia Esther, CEO of Super Investors

Valencia is a former foster youth and a Los Angeles, California native with over 20 years of experience as a financial, business, and accounting Coach. During certain periods of her childhood, Valencia lived in the foster care system. She also went on to experience homelessness as an adult. Her experiences ignited a flame within her to pursue her passion of empowering children and young adults about financial knowledge.

Through the vehicle of financial literacy, Valencia inspires children and young adults by empowering them to learn about the necessary steps for establishing businesses and information on how the stock market runs. Her vision is for all young people to have an understanding of these two important subjects, so they will have a fair chance of winning in life, especially in the crucial area of finances. Valencia's approach to economic empowerment has proven to be fun, clever and inviting.

Games for generational wealth

We have adapted lessons in a fun and relatable four week program for our kids. The goal is to teach young people about financial literacy and how they can thrive in the right direction with a financial literacy mindset.

WHY IS FINANCIAL LITERACY IMPORTANT FOR YOUTH?

Financial literacy is key to helping young people manage money effectively so that they can become financially stable, build assets and achieve their personal goals.

Decisions made in early adulthood can have lasting financial consequences. For instance, today's youth can amass debt quickly, often in the form of school loans or credit card debt. According to a report by the National Endowment for Financial Education, Generations of youth reported an average debt of about $60,000 by their late 20s, and their successors — Millennials — had already reached this point in their mid-20s.

Many young people receive no formal financial instruction. Instead, they learn about money through socialization, such as observing and listening to their parents, caregivers, other adults and peers.

Did you know?

75% of American teens lack confidence in their knowledge of personal finance. 25% of Americans say they don't have anyone they can ask for trusted financial guidance. 23% of U.S. adults ages 18 to 29 have credit card debt that's over 90 days overdue. Americans owe over $800 billion in credit card debt as of 2022.
